FACTIONAL FIGHTS IN CHINESE RANKS OCCUPY ATTENTION

Delay Reply of Cantonese to Notes Sent by Five Powers

Factional fighting has broken out behind the Cantonese lines after the reverses on the battle front in which the southern armies were forced back over the Yangtze river by the north-erners.

Acting on orders from the Cantonese general, Chiang Kai Shek, moderate plain clothed men, armed with machine guns, bombs and pistols, attacked headquarters by the Cantonese red labor unions in Shanghai, Hangchow, Nanking and Moy. In Shanghai twelve radicals were killed and a large number wounded. Hundreds were dispersed and arrested.

Forecasting a possible boycott against the British in Shanghai a large anti-British league has been inaugurated there.

Meanwhile the reply of the Cantonese to the five powers demands (apologies and redress for the anti-foreign outrages at Nanking of March is awaited.

Washington, April 12—(AP)—The actual outbreak of hostilities between moderate and radical elements of the Cantonese armies in China has shoved into the background, for the moment, speculation as to the Chinese reply to the demands of the powers submitted yesterday and has turned attention to the possibilities of the political split in the nationalist party.

Fighting today between the factions, reported at several points may serve to delay replies to the five powers notes demanding reparations for insult and injury to foreigners by Cantonese troops at Nanking but it also may have far reaching results on the whole future of China and the policies of other nations toward that country.

There were no official advices available here today to indicate what reply to the note might be expected.

DIRTIEST JOB IN PRISON ASSIGNED TO WIFE SLAYER

W. N. Coffey, Despised by Fellow Convicts, Retains Smile

Platteville, Wis.—Despised as a religious hypocrite and shunned by his fellow prisoners, William N. Coffey, serving a life sentence in Waupun state prison for killing a woman to whom he was married while he had a legal wife living elsewhere, has one of the hardest and dirtiest tasks in the prison, according to Wilfred Ferguson, of Platteville, a guard at the penitentiary.

Coffey, the one-time gay deceiver of women and capricious of his heart and purses—lay preacher, bond salesman and confidence man, is employed as a twice passer in the rope manufacturing department of the prison. In his work he is obliged to handle the flax while it is in a half-rotted condition, and the occupation is a strenuous and unpleasant one.

But the smile that he retained through the ordeal that ended with his confession of murder is still with the slayer. He greets everyone, even those who taunt and jeer him, with a smiling face.

He readily declares he has found solace in the Bible, which he reads daily, and it is this religious pose, while admitting one of the most revolting crimes in the history of the state, that has set him apart as a person without a friend, the other prisoners shunning him as a person unworthy of even a kindly word.

Buries Disemboweled Body

Coffey is the confessed murderer of his bigamist wife, Hattie Sherman Hales.

He disemboweled her body, buried portions of it in a grove near Platteville and threw other parts of it into the Mississippi river.

It was announced that Mrs. Carroll would go with him on the same train to Atlanta, but not in the same car. She plans to live in Atlanta while he is in prison.

One Entrance Unlocked

Front and back doors were locked. Every door leading to the basement, was not locked. There was much mud outside. Anyone entering through that door would have had very muddy feet. There were no footprints in the mud, on the cellar stairs or on the clean linoleum of the kitchen to which the stairs led.

Dr. Loomis picked up his wife's body. Then he remembered that everything should be left just as it was until the police arrived. He picked up the telephone. It was out of order. He ran to a neighbor's house and called police.

Patrolmen came in a hurry. They examined the sun room thoroughly. When detectives from the central office looked for fingerprints they found none—but all were prints of the patrolmen.

Male's Story Unshaken

Dr. Loomis was arrested and questioned closely. But the detectives were unable to shake a single detail of his story.

They asked him where he went on Tuesday evening, February 22, Mrs. Loomis said in the sun parlor of her home. The lights were on and the shades were not drawn. At about 8:30 o'clock, Dr. Loomis came home from his office.

Half an hour later the narrative is the husband's from his own lips. Loomis gave his wife $100 for various household expenses, and then left the house to take a walk.

At 9:45 o'clock he returned—and let himself in with his key—and found his wife lying dead on the sun room floor. She had been clubbed to death. There were signs in the sun room of a terrible struggle.

SCHOOL ATTENDED BY GREAT THROG OF WOMEN TODAY

Edna M. Ferguson Took Audience by Storm at First Session

The Evening Telegraph's Free Cooking school opened this afternoon with a crowd which taxed the capacity of the spacious banquet room in the basement of the Knicker Club, the outpouring of the women of Dixon and community showing the exceptional interest in this school which has been aroused.

Many women were waiting for the doors to open at 1 o'clock—the hour they will open tomorrow, Thursday and Friday afternoons—and when the musical program was started at 1:30 the hall was filled to its maximum capacity.

The lecturer and demonstrator, Edna M. Ferguson, nationally recognized expert in the culinary art, was greeted with spontaneous applause when she was introduced, and the success of the first four days of the school was at once assured.

The program selected for the opening of the school was replete with interesting things and the talk of Edna M. Ferguson was filled with bits of the knowledge that you have been seeking for many years.

A rousing welcome was given the lecturer as she stepped upon the platform in her snow white garb.

Complete Kitchen

The stage setting was a completely furnished modern kitchen equipped with every conceivable kind of device for the purpose of lessening woman's labor in the home. As each article of this marvelous kitchen was used, exclamations were heard throughout the audience.

Miss Ferguson just won her audience at the very start. She impressed everyone with the fact that she knows her art. And she can teach you how to handle all that goes into a modern kitchen. At the close of the session, women flocked about the platform to get a close glimpse of the many and varied things that were used in preparing the deliciously tasty dishes and also to ask additional intimate questions. They were all profuse in their appreciation of her efforts to give both scientific and practical instruction.

Work Made Easier

Truly the mechanics of the world have worked wonders for the housewife in the kitchen and right well did Miss Ferguson show how to make use of the things that now have been made. And mind you not at any great expense over just what you are now expending.

The lecturer always made her points clear when it came to telling about the labor saving devices in the kitchen. She emphasized the fact that they were not extravagant. She said, "Modern household administration is an art of the times and it behooves parents of two children, apparently living very happily on Marlowe avenue, in a suburban district."

During her talk it was quite evident to everyone present that she knew how to oil the wheels so that the housewife could get the most out of the efficiency of any household. ## DETROIT DOCTOR IS UNDER CHARGE OF WIFE MURDER

Warrant Issued Today for Crime Committed in Winter

Detroit, April 12—(AP)—Judge W. M. Bickham of recorders court today signed a warrant, charging Dr. Frank R. Loomis with first degree murder in the death of his wife, Grace, who was clubbed to death in their home about two months ago.

The stage setting was a completely furnished modern kitchen equipped with every conceivable kind of device for the purpose of lessening woman's labor in the home. As each article of this marvelous kitchen was used, exclamations were heard throughout the audience.

Called "Perfect Crime"

The crime Sherlock Holmes used to say never could be committed—Did it become a reality here when Mrs. Grace Loomis, beautiful and so socially prominent, was taken to death in her handsome suburban home, a scant block from a police station?

Sherlock Holmes, master mind at solving crimes done in fiction, contended a murderer could not fail to leave some clue that ultimately would lead to his arrest.

Right, maybe, but—Perhaps Holmes was right. But Detroit's "homicide squad," as capable as any in America, has worked day and night on the mystery of the clubbing of Mrs. Loomis a few weeks ago.

Their net progress toward solving the death riddle is—Exactly none. They are bewildered.

Mrs. Loomis was the wife of Dr. Frank R. Loomis, respected Detroit physician. They were in their early thirties, parents of two children, apparently living very happily on Marlowe avenue, in a suburban district.

The tragedy

Tuesday evening, February 22, Mrs. Loomis sat in the sun parlor of her home. The lights were on and the shades were not drawn. At about 8:30 o'clock, Dr. Loomis came home from his office.

Half an hour later the narrative is the husband's from his own lips. Loomis gave his wife $100 for various household expenses, and then left the house to take a walk.

TO DARKEN HAIR
APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous.

DETROIT DOCTOR
IS UNDER CHARGE

his three-quarters-of-an-hour walk, and how fast he walked. He told them. A policeman took the same walk, at the same pace—and found it took just 45 minutes.

Telephone company records show that Dr. Loomis' phone was listed as out of order from 9:30 to 9:50 o'clock, as Loomis had said.

They asked why he had blood stains on his overcoat, his gloves and his hat. He replied that these came when he stooped to pick up his wife's body.

They asked him why there were no blood stains on the telephone receiver. He replied that he had removed his left glove when he tried to use the instrument.

Dr. Loomis was released on a writ of habeas corpus, the court finding there was no evidence against him.

His release came after there had been widespread expressions of indignation over his arrest. Friends signed petitions expressing complete confidence in him.

There the case stands. The $100 Dr. Loomis says he gave his wife has not been found. But two diamond rings on her hand were not touched.

No trace of the club with which she was killed has been found. Dr. Loomis has offered $1000 reward for the slayer's arrest.

Probing the doctor's past, detectives learned he was born in Brooklyn, Mich., on a farm; studied medicine; entered a New York hospital as interne; met Grace Burns, a nurse and married her.

Ideally Mated
In Detroit, Dr. Loomis had a prosperous practice. Friends said the physician and his wife were ideally mated, fond of each other, of their home, of their two children.

The children have not been told of the "perfect crime." They play together happily in the home of Dr. Loomis' mother, hoping their own mother soon will return.

But she will not—for she was the victim of what may prove to have been the "perfect crime" at last. (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

New York, April 12—(AP)—The New York World says today that the annual Jefferson Day dinner of the National Democratic Club here April 23 will mark an effort by democratic leaders toward "wiping out the bitterness engendered and restoring the party morale shattered by the convention of 1924."

Governor Smith will attend and the World says undoubtedly efforts will be made to turn the affair into a real Smith boom although the friends of the Governor will not encourage any open demonstration.

FORD'S SECRETARY GAVE OFFICER OF
COURT FOOT RACE

Before Subpoena Could be Served on Him in Sapiro Case

Detroit, April 12.—(AP)—A subpoena, returnable tomorrow, has been served on E. G. Liebold, general secretary to Henry Ford, for his appearance as a witness in the Ford Sapiro case. The subpoena was issued by the court for Aaron Sapiro, complainant, announced today. Efforts had been made for several weeks to locate him, Mr. Gallagher said.

Liebold was served after a long chase down the street this morning, Gallagher said.

Out Away Monday.
The process server, however, found Liebold yesterday, but when he sought to serve the paper, guards with Liebold pinned his arms until Liebold had fled, Gallagher said.

This morning the process server caught Liebold as he was emerging from his home and after the foot race, served the paper.

Mr. Sapiro came to court today faced with possibility of continuing his case after denial of a mistrial.

Scores of times Sapiro and Senator James A. Reed, chief of Ford's counsel, had engaged in tilts. Judge Raymond in a long lecture from the bench called a halt yesterday.

Judge His Sapiro.
He charged Sapiro and Attorney Gallagher with "an apparent willingness to disobey the injunction of the court."

With face drawn and white, Sapiro sat silently, watching the effect of the judge's remarks upon the jury.

Then he sprang from the witness chair to confer with Gallagher.

Gallagher asserted that the "court's language and the court's demeanor was such as to prejudice the witness as a litigant" and demanded a mistrial.

He got a denial, further criticism and instructions to sit down.

Gallagher said that while Liebold would have to be in court tomorrow, there would be no change in his plan to demand Ford as the next witness after Sapiro.

Thomas S. Wareham, who frequently acts as an agent for attorneys, served the subpoena upon Liebold. He was waiting in an automobile when Liebold came out of his home and chased him two blocks. Liebold's motor was said to have stalled and the pursuit continued by foot.

OLD MASTERS

SAID THE WISE OLD BEE—
Said the wise old bee at the close of the day,
"This colony business doesn't pay.
I put my honey in that old hive
That others may eat and live
And thrive.
And I do more work in a day by gee,
Than some of the others do in three."
"I toil and worry and save and hoard,
And all I get is my room and board.
It's me for a hive I can run myself,
And me for the sweets of my hard earned pelf."

So the old bee flew to a meadow lone,
And started a business all his own.
He gave no thought to the buzzing clan,
But all intent on his selfish plan.
He lived the life of a hermit free—
"Ah, this is great," said the wise old bee.

But the summer waned and the days grew dear,
And the lone bee wailed as he dropped a tear.
For the varmints gobbled his little store
And his wax gave out and his heart was sore.
So he winged his way to the old home land,
And took his meals at the helping hand.

Alone our work is of little worth;
Together we are the lords of the earth.
So it's all for each and each for all,
United we stand, divided we fall.

EDISON AND THE GREAT PERHAPS.

The discoveries of modern science, says Thomas A. Edison, favor a belief in the immortality of the soul.

Thus does one more man of science offer an affirmative answer to the age-old question: "If a man die, shall he live again?"

Edison's life, so to speak, has been spent in the laboratory. For many years he has busied himself with test tubes and chemical equations and electrical devices. He has been, as it were, the poet of materialism, the prophet of the machine, the worker of miracles in inanimate objects.

He has even conferred a kind of immortality on his fellow men. Caruso is dead; yet Caruso, because of Edison's genius, still sings. The "golden voice" was not choked by the grave, but rings on as vibrantly as it did when Caruso lived.

Now men who work miracles of this kind are not, ordinarily, men of any great faith in a soul or a hereafter. They are accustomed to exact figures, to demonstrable proofs, to reactions that they can see and equations that they can set down on paper. They do not like to accept anything that they cannot prove.

Many of them are skeptics, and some are out-and-out atheists. It is a debatable question, some hold, whether our scientists have not done us more harm than good, in that their gifts to us have been accompanied by a materialistic, doubting philosophy that, for many people, has robbed life of joy and the world of hope.

Edison's statement is like a breath of fresh air.

It is a helpful reminder that science has not settled any of the questions of the spirit; that the soulless philosophy of a scientist like Haeckel, for instance, is only one man's opinion and not a creed to which science as a whole subscribes.

Edison, nearing the close of his life, is like Voltaire, greatest of the skeptics. Edison, at 80, remarks that a belief in immortality is, after all, comforting and reasonable. Voltaire, dying, conceded much the same thing with the remark, "I go to face a Great Perhaps."

TO GET BETTER PLAYS.

The American theater needs intelligent and discriminating spectators more than it needs anything else, Edgar M. Woolley, of Yale University, tells the round-table conference on drama.

To our way of thinking, the professorial gentleman has hit the ball squarely and fairly.

For, after all it is said and done, no unworthy, suggestive play would survive a week if so many people didn't like to see just that kind of play. As soon as the mass of theatergoers demand better plays they will get them, in abundance.

TERRORS OF TELEVISION.

With television in effect the only other problem we've got to face is to make a night club look like the beside of a sick friend. . . . Be careful when calling up to say that you've been called away suddenly and will be out of town for couple of days. The poker chips might give you away. . . . By television the human face can be cast hundreds of miles, say the experts. For some, that isn't far enough. . . . So the Irishman was right after all when he said: "Somebody to see you on the phone!"

TRADITION HAS IT.

America is a pauper in traditions, says a London professor. But, professor, how about the miners' spring strike? . . . . Hasn't the word reached London yet about Harry Lauder's farewell tours through the United States? . . . . Doesn't he know about Secretary Kellogg's denials that he intends to offer his resignation? . . . . We may be poverty-stricken in tradition, but this is the only country in the world where you can get three alienists to declare you sane and three who'll find you crazy. . . . Not to mention the little girl, who upon taking her first lesson in golf asked her father: "Dad if I miss the ball must I swear?"

An association has started a move to halt profanity in the Spanish army. There are said to be a few other armies, too, where the soldiers are none too careful with their words.

There has been no perceptible increase in man's intelligence in the last 20,000 years, says a magazine writer. And some of the jokes have lasted all those years, too.

A monument to the woman who invented Camembert cheese in 1791 has been dedicated in Normandy. Who started the Congressional Record?

The ladies are becoming "Adamized," according to the new Parisian. Now, as to the men, would you say they are growing madamized?

Benito Mussolini declared vehemently that no man ever became world-famous while wearing long whiskers. It's true, then; there ain't no Santa Claus.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The rooster crowed on, merrily, then walked away. Quite proud was he. The Tinies watched him strut along 'till he was out of sight. Then Scouty shouted, "Catch him quick, 'cause he has dropped his fiddle stick." And, as he shouted, he began to run with all his might.

The others followed right behind. Their plan, of course, was very kind, quick, 'cause he has dropped his fiddle stick." And, as he shouted, he began to run with all his might.

The bird then thanked the Tinymites and told them of some dandy sights that they could see if they would go on down the winding lane. "You'll find a baker man who makes the finest brand of tasty cakes," said he. And then the Tinymites were on their way again.

They shortly came upon a shop and Coppy said, "Here's where we ston. I think I smell some tempting food. Let's go inside and see." But, first they rapped upon the door, and in about a minute more, a man appeared and said, "Hello! Come in an eat with me."

The Tinies did, and oh, such food. They ate so much, twice almost. This baker was the man who makes the dandy pata-cakes. "Go right ahead," said he and eat. "Twill cost you naught. 'Tis my treat." Poor Clowmy shortly shouted, "Oh, my poor old tummy heh-heh."

The man then said, "My work is play, and I bake cakes the live long day. I've always been a baker since a very tiny time. It's fun to bake such cakes as these. You know they are the kind that please. It's fun to do things when you know they're things that people like."

The Tinymites meet little Bobby Shaftee in the next story.

SAINT and SINNER

Joy, almost entirely recovered with the remarkable resilience of childhood, from his bronchial pneumonia, begged so hard to be allowed to see her sister that Faith and Bob had to let her up warmly and took her to the jail with them on Sunday. Jim Lane did not go, but sat brooding in the kitchen, almost buried beneath mounds of Sunday papers. Junior and his bride, Fay, went early to the jail, carrying a basket filled with delicacies from Faith's bountiful Sunday dinner, but they had left when Faith, Bob and Joy arrived.

"Hello, Giggly Alley!" Cherry cried joyously, as she kissed her little sister's waxen pale face, using the nickname which the schoolchildren had given her, as a parody of her name, Joy Lane. "How do you like my parlor?" she asked cheerfully to indicate the furnishings of the women's ward reception room of the jail.

"I been praying for you," Joy told Cherry. "And I got pneumonia," she added proudly. "When are you coming home, Cherry? I prayed to God to punish me instead of you, and He did, so I know you won't be hung or electrocuted, like Cora Parsons said you would be."

"Of course, I don't hate you, darling. Don't be a little idiot! I want you to try to get a good night's sleep tonight, honey, for tomorrow will probably be a bad day. I heard Banning tell a reporter that he would put Mrs. Albright on the stand the first thing Monday morning. She'll testify about the dance at the Marlboro Country Club when you—"

"When I tried to tell Bob away from you to save myself from marrying his uncle," burst out Cherry with sudden bitterness. "Oh, every tiny little thing that I ever did, as well as the big ones like that, will be dragged out into the courtroom to shame me for life. Tomorrow will be monstrously unfair, Bob," she cried, turning her tear-drenched eyes toward the young man who stood regarding her gravely and sympathetically.

"You mustn't brood on that now, Cherry," Bob told her almost sternly.

"Of course I won't, Joy, honey!" Cherry laughed, but her golden eyes were misty with tears. "Now, you lie on this nice couch, and Mrs. Webb, the matron, who's a perfect peach to me, will help you do a crossword puzzle."

"You come along with me, Joy, and I'll show you a new game of solitaire that I've just learned," Mrs. Webb, the matron, bustled forward, her eyes compassionate, her motherly hand extended. "Cherry and her sister and Mr. Hathaway must want to have a nice long talk."

Cherry's face underwent a swift change when Joy was no longer watching it with her sharp gray eyes. "Oh, I'm disgraced for life! No matter how the trial comes out, I'll be an outcast! That awful Albert Esterson! I don't see how I ever did it. Do you hate me too, Faith?"

"Of course, I don't hate you, darling. Don't be a little idiot! I want you to try to get a good night's sleep tonight, honey, for tomorrow will probably be a bad day. I heard Banning tell a reporter that he would put Mrs. Albright on the stand the first thing Monday morning. She'll testify about the dance at the Marlboro Country Club when you—"

Tomorrow will be monstrously unfair, Bob," she cried, turning her tear-drenched eyes toward the young man who stood regarding her gravely and sympathetically.

"You mustn't brood on that now, Cherry," Bob told her almost sternly.

"You must be thinking of everything that can be of any help to Churchill in cross-examination of Aunt Alice—no, I won't call her an aunt of mine any longer—of Mrs. Albright. And you must sleep as much as possible, eat well, keep your courage up, for your courage and your beauty are your greatest defense witnesses. Faith and I were saying yesterday that the whole jury is in love with you."

"In love?" Cherry cried bitterly. "I wish I'd never heard the word, 'love'! What has it gotten me, I'd like to know? A husband I hate, and—and a cell in jail. And beauty! I suppose it's really my 'fatal beauty' that's brought me here," she laughed shakily, the old Cherry asserting herself. And to the sad amusement of Faith and Bob, she took a tiny powder-and-rouge compact from the pocket of her black dress and surveyed her mirrored face with unconcealable approval.

"I wish Churchill would let me use a little lipstick and rouge!" she pouted charmingly. "I'm so ghastly pale, say isn't Judge Grimshaw a darling. He smiled at me twice today!"

FAVORABLE FARM CONDITIONS ARE SHOWN IN REPORT

First Crop Conditions Survey of Season Issued Today

Springfield, Ill., April 11.—(AP)—Favorable farm conditions in Illinois at the start of the growing season were reported today by the state and federal departments of agriculture.

In the first crop condition survey of the season, the Illinois winter wheat condition was reported slightly above average and the loss of acreage from winter killing as being small. The joint report continued:

"Rye condition is near average, pasture growth is about two weeks ahead of last year. A plentiful supply of farm labor is reported quite generally. Planting of small grains in most of the central and southern areas got off to an early start in March but frequently rain interruptions have retarded field work, especially in the southern areas, since March 10th. Preparatory work for spring planting is well advanced in progress in the north but not much planting was done before the close of the month. Dirt roads have been in bad shape for hauling for some time. Unusually mild March temperatures started all plant growth earlier than usual. Rainfall has ranged from about normal in the north to above normal in the central and southern areas.

"The condition of Illinois wheat on April 1 is rated at 83 per cent of normal compared with 71 per cent last December, 71 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average of 82 per cent for April 1. Wheat has wintered much better than expected following the unusually late start last fall. The improvement in condition from 71 per cent in December to 83 per cent on April 1 is one of the most marked on record for Illinois. Wheat sown in time to get a fair start last fall is up to a good stand, but from 29 to 35 per cent of the state acreage was sown very late and conditions are somewhat spotted for this portion of the crop. Winter and spring conditions have been unfavorably wet for late planting. With numerous thin stands reported and low spots in fields often drowned out. The most favorable conditions are reported from the southern and southeastern portions of the state. U. S. condition of winter wheat is placed at 84.5 per cent compared with 81.8 per cent last December, 84.1 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average of 79.8 per cent April 1.

"The April 1 condition of rye in Illinois is 97 per cent. This compares with 85 per cent last year and the 10 year average of 89 per cent. U. S. rye condition is 96.4 per cent compared with 84 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average of 85.8 per cent. State pasture condition is favorable generally and reported to be 88 per cent of normal compared with 81 per cent a year ago and the average of 83 per cent. U. S. pasture condition is reported at 86.8 per cent.

"Both day and monthly farm wages are reported little changed from a year ago. The average monthly wage with board is reported at $43 and without board at $55 per month. Where hired by the day the average wage is reported at $2.15 with board and $2.80 per day without board. The farm labor situation is the most satisfactory in years. There is an increasing tendency to have farm labor by the day as needed when it is available. Due to rather tight cash situation many farmers are planning their operations to get along with as little hired help as possible.

French Proposals on

Disarmament Rejected

Geneva, April 11.—(AP)—Great Britain, through Viscount Cecil, announced to the disarmament parley today that it was unable to accept the French proposals regarding limitation of naval armaments.

The Italian representative intimated his country could not support the proposals.

The French plan provides for these columns of figures, the total tonnage necessary for a given country's security, tonnage the country expects to reach or build during the period of the limitation treaty, or total tonnage in categories of war ships. These categories would be battleships, aircraft carriers, surface craft not exceeding 10,000 tons (including cruisers and torpedo boats) and submarines.

Mail Robber Denies Shot

Fisher was shot and killed near Mokena while searching for the mail robber who had fled from Indiana Harbor. Hesley's trial was set for Monday.

He was brought back here from prison on a writ of habeas corpus so that he could be tried on the murder charge. He confessed the robbery in which $30,000 was taken and recovered, but denied the shooting.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

by PAUL ADAMS
© NEA Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth chapter in the story of a former war veteran who is going back to Paris as a forerunner of the Second A.E.F.

Paris—the capital of the world—the city on the Seine. Men from every nation know its streets. Known to the tribes of ancient Gaul—known to the Caesars, to Charlemagne, to Pershing, to Wilson and to multitudinous AEFers.

"Alors," Gendarmes with their caps and striking blue capes—a blue uniform and a cap with wide gold band—a sign in a store window: "Man Spricht Deutsch" (the war ended in 1918)—a woman sitting on a box in front of a jewelry store in the Boulevard des Italiens calmly polishing some brass letters, an all-day job that would be done in the States in five minutes—the myriad taxicabs coursing along with their horns sounding off—

There's an epicure; there a charcuterie—a horse with a bell on his collar clatters by hauling a high-wheeled cart—a baker's boy riding a bicycle cart loaded with long loaves of French bread (it is amazing that he threads the traffic and doesn't lose his cargo in one wild jump)—another sign: "Defense d'Afficher"—"Post No Bills!"

Natily-dressed women and girls stroll along—there's an American—and all is so leisurely—soothing. "Pomp-Pomp."

Another taxicab chugs around the corner of the Rue Scribe and veers on to the Place de l'Opera. A merchant goes by pushing a low three-wheeled cart filled with bottles. A sign: "American Bar"—another sign: "Roses et Martini"—electric advertisements flash—and on every hand are familiar American trade names.

It is never late in Paris, but when it is time to retire there is a brass bed—with three huge pillows—a silk coverlet—and an excellent mattress—and very soothing to a worn frame, be it native French or visiting American.

"Restez la! Restez la! Couchez! Pas de mauvais reve!" Which is: "Sleep and don't have any unpleasant dreams."

TOMORROW: Leave Your Cigarettes.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

* At the Last Supper, Jesus warned Peter he would deny His Master thrice, before the cock crowed twice. After Christ was seized by His enemies in the garden, Peter followed to the high priest's house and sat and warmed himself by a fire. (Mark XIV: 54)

Peter's Denial of Christ

A maid of the high priest accused Peter of being a disciple. He denied it. Peter went out on a porch and the cock crew. (Mark XIV: 67-68)

Again a maid said, pointing to Peter, "This is one of them." For the second time Peter denied Christ. (Mark XIV: 69-70)

For the third time, Peter was accused of being a disciple. Cursing and swearing he denied Christ again. The cock crowed for the second time, and Peter, recalling the prophecy of Jesus, went out and wept bitterly. (Mark XIV: 70-72)

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

How I make good pies every time

For a medium size pie I use 2½ cups flour, ¾ cup Crisco, 1 teaspoon salt. To measure ¾ of a cup of Crisco I take a measuring cup, put in ¾ cup of cold water, then add enough Crisco to bring the water to the top of the cup, pour it off and I have an exact ¾ cup of Crisco. Then I cut the Crisco into the flour with two knives, criss-cross fashion. (If I used my fingers the heat from them would soften the Crisco and blend it with the flour too closely to make a flaky crust.) As the Crisco is cut into small particles each one becomes covered with flour, and when enough cold water is added (4 to 6 tablespoons) the dough will then be composed of these small particles, which when rolled become layers of flour and Crisco. Then if baking is started in a very hot oven to set mixture before the Crisco has time to melt, the result will be a tender, flaky pastry.

Be careful about water
Have the water cold and use only enough to make a paste which will easily clear the bowl and is soft enough so it will not break at the edges when rolled. It is easier to tell when you have just the right amount of water if you use your fingers to mix it. Now take half the dough, dust the board with flour, using as little as possible, and roll the pastry very lightly from the center outward, each motion of the rolling pin ending in the air, not on the board. It should be about an eighth of an inch thick. Fold it over one-half, lay over a Criscoed plate, fold back over the plate, smooth into shape with the fingers and trim the edges.

To prevent the filling from soaking into the bottom crust

Brush it over with melted Crisco, dust a little flour over that, then add the filling prepared according to the recipe you are using. Moisten the edge with water, then roll the other half of the dough, fold it over one-half, make slits with a knife in the center of the fold for steam to escape. Lay over the pie, with the fold in the center, turn back to cover it, press edges together with thumb and finger, trim, then press together again.

To keep the juice in

Take a strip of plain cloth about three inches wide, wet it in cold water and put around the edge of the plate, letting one half lie on top of the edge of the pie crust and the other half just under the pie plate. Have the strip long enough so that the ends will lap over each other two or three inches. For very juicy fillings, make a little funnel of paper or take pieces of macaroni and stick into two or three of the slits you have made. The juices will bubble up into these and return to the pie as it cools.

When pie is partly cool remove cloth and funnels.

When juices run out they will burn on the bottom of the oven, causing a smudge which is likely to add a smoky taste to the pie and leaving the oven hard to clean.

Deep Dish Apple Pie (a pie without an undercrust)

Serve in dishes they are baked in. Or when they are baked, turn them upside down on plates, cover with sweetened whipped cream, sprinkle with chopped nuts and call them Apple Crow's Nest.

Prepare 3 cups of sliced apples, then mix in 1 cup of sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Divide into 4 or 5 individual baking dishes. Add ½ teaspoon salt to each. Dot with bits of Crisco. Cover with the pastry, making slits in the center for steam to escape. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) until pastry starts to brown. Then reduce heat to moderate (350° F.) until apples are done. (About one-half hour.)

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL

Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute

An Astonishing Blindfold Test

SEE if this doesn't give you the greatest surprise of your whole cooking experience!

Put a little Crisco on the tip of one spoon. On the tip of another place a little of the fat you are now using; have someone blindfold you, and give you first one, then the other fat to taste.

Now, did you ever imagine there could be such a striking difference in the taste of raw cooking fats? Think what an improvement Crisco's sweetness and freshness will make in your own cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

Crisco is the trade mark for a superior shortening manufactured and guaranteed pure vegetable by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A.

Butterscotch Tartlets

Use Crisco in making the pastry for these tarts and the tender, flaky crust, blended with the delicious filling and fluffy meringue will fairly melt in your mouth.

Take bits of dough about the size of an egg. Roll; cover the bottom of inverted muffin pans which have been greased with Crisco. Prick well with a fork to prevent bubbles. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) about 15 minutes. When baked, slip shells off, turn pan over and put in a muffin tin. Fill with the following Butterscotch filling:

1 cup brown sugar 1 cup milk
3 tablespoons flour 3 tablespoons water
2 egg yolks 1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon Crisco ¼ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, salt and flour. Add water. Cool until thick, stirring constantly. Just before removing from stove, stir in beaten egg. Add Crisco and vanilla. Cool slightly and fill the tart shells. Cover with a meringue made by beating 2 egg whites stiff and dry; add 2 tablespoons granulated sugar; cover tarts, return to slow oven (300° F.) for 15 minutes or until brown. This amount will fill 12 tarts.

Crisco is used by

Such Flavor

as this comes only in real
Quaker Oats

THE price you pay for substitutes is the same as for the genuine Quaker Oats. The difference is in the flavor. And flavor, above all things, is important in oats.

That rich and tasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years' milling experience. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That is why millions demand the Quaker brand—why you should accept no other.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamins and
"bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently "balanced" food.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

The splendid work of Brother
Moore of Sterling, in his series of Pre-Easter sermons, entered the second week, Sunday, and the large, attentive audience gave evidence of the satisfaction felt by the congregation and friends. The entire church membership is called on to concentrate in devoted prayer and personal work in making this Holy Week one of high spiritual zeal and appreciation for God's great gift of the Suffering Savior.

One hundred men heard a great appeal yesterday afternoon for more "masculine Christianity" in the church. Mr. Moore said that entirely too many in their religious lives are like the soldier, who, when asked by his officer what he would do if volunteers should be called for to attack a very dangerous position, replied: "I'd stand to one side and let the volunteers pass!" Messrs. Floto,
Gates and Morris of the Kingdom
Quartet were heard with great delight at this service, and Curtis Rice's solo was characteristic of his excellence.

The attendance and assistance in the program by Pastors Heldenreich, Quincer and Brandfeller was much appreciated.

Five new members were added to the church during the day, and as a foretaste of the enthusiasm and joyful fellowship of Easter Day, Sunday was a great success.

The Woman's Missionary Society will have their annual Easter Prayer and Thank-offering service Wednesday, 2:30 at the church.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT SERVICE ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH

Tomorrow night St. Paul's Lutheran church will hold the first of the ing the whole of the Lenten period devotional and helpful services were held every Wednesday night at 7:30.

The attendance has been good. The Young People's Choir will have charge and lead in the music. Members of the congregation have received folders with the program for Holy Week and Easter. The Communion card also was enclosed. Preserve your card and place it on the offering plate
Easter day. If you do not commune, you are asked to return the card just the same. The Lenten offering envelopes are also to be returned on Easter. Place them on the plate or send them.

The sermon topic for Wednesday night is, "The Betraying Kiss."

Easter Sunday. — A large group of people will join church with us on this day, and each day several more make this a noble decision. Yesterday several decided to take this step, and already today, before this goes to press, several have come and signified their choice to join with us. Old and young, grown-ups and young people, it seems like one of our great-

America's premier outdoor festival, the pennant races in the American and National Leagues, opened today with more changes in the lineup than in many years.
More new managers, more old idols in new uniforms and more accumulated winter debris to be carted away, were offered as the aftermath of a season of unprecedented trading, wrangling and scandalizing. However, in the words of K. M. Landis, the boss, the outlook was good.
Rube Ruth's new contract, Ty Cobb's final year, Rogers Hornsby's transfer, Connie Mack's heavy purchases and nine new managers have set question marks before fandom.
Champions Meet Cubs
The champions, the St. Louis Cardinals, began their defense of their title where the Chicago Cubs reside.
President Coolidge, despite his lame wrist, planned to toss the first ball in the American League opener at Washington with Boston as the opposition.
Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, including Ty Cobb and Eddie Collins, were pitted against Babe Ruth and his fellow champions in New York.
Rogers Hornsby, a wealthy retired stock broker, and the other New York Giants, premiered against Philadelphia.
The other two American League games, Chicago at Cleveland and Detroit at St. Louis, brought out four new managers. They are Ray Schalk, White Sox, catcher; Jack McCallister, who took Speaker's place, George Moriarty at Detroit and Dan Howley, for St. Louis.

BY GROVER ALEXANDER
Veteran Pitcher of World's Champions

I will close this series with my selection of an all-star team in the National League during my career of 16 seasons. I will deal with the players who have impressed me the most. In three positions I am unable to definitely decide upon one player, so will name two. My all-star team follows:
First Base—Hal Chase and Jake Daubert.
Second Base—Rogers Hornsby.
Third Base—Hoddy Lacy.
Shortstop—Honus Wagner and Dave Bancroft.
Left Field—Jimmy Sheppard.
Center Field—Eddie Roush and Max Carey.
Right Field—Frank Schulte.

Pitchers—Christy Mathewson, Babe Adams, Mordecai Brown and Nap Rucker.
I just can't select between Chase and Daubert. Hal probably was more artistic and acrobatic than Jake, but not any more efficient.
At second base, Hornsby stands alone of all the second basemen I have seen. He is not my choice on hitting alone, for I have seen him star in fielding for many seasons. Traynor is the third baseman without any further argument. I don't think the game has produced another third baseman who is his equal, unless this chap Lester Bell on our club comes up to him.
Hans Wagner is paired with Dave Bancroft for shortstop. Wasn't Hans a gem of a player? There should be more like him—more who love to play the game as he did. Bancroft, however, is not overlooked. What a phenomenal shortstop he was for us in 1915 when the Phillies won the pennant? I have never seen a shortstop get a ball away quicker than Benny. I have to go back to the old-time

All but Minneapolis and Columbus were considered capable of coping the banner this year.

DEFENSE EFFORTS UNITED TO WARD OFF CORN BORER

Federal Agencies and Those of States in Great Campaign

Urbana, Ill., April 12.—(AP)—With the smoke of Illinois' first actual corn borer just clearing from the infested region in Kankakee county, investigators of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture have set themselves to the task of working out ways and means whereby farmers of the state can grow corn at a profit in spite of future infestations, which they believe inevitable.

Two departments—farm mechanics and agronomy have taken the burden of the task. New strains and varieties of corn are especially adapted to corn borer conditions, cultural practices that will aid in the growing of the adapted corn and methods of handling and cleaning up corn land for the maximum control of the borer are being sought.

The farm mechanics department has gathered together a complete outfit of existing machines for corn borer control. These will be tried out under actual field conditions to find the most practical types of machinery and field practices for killing borers. About the only machine not represented in the collection is the special corn combine, of which only one has been manufactured. It picks and husks the ear and shreds the stalk into bits.

Special wide-bottom plows that are supposed to turn a cleaner furrow than the narrower bottoms, corn binders with special low cut attachments and a dozen or more other machines, such as rotary "hoes," combine seed pulverizers, rollers, special harrows and stubble pulverizers, all having some special feature for corn borer control, will get a chance to show their worth under Illinois conditions.

In addition, the farm mechanics department is preparing to launch an investigation in which it will be possible to compare 100 different combinations of preliminary cleanup, seed bed plowing and seed bed preparation. Comparisons of different methods of planting, cultivating and harvesting corn and the development and improvement of machinery for corn borer control are other objectives of the project.

"Economy of production as well as effective control will be the thing sought in this study, for if the farmer can grow corn cheaper, even if there is a little loss from the borer, the crop can still be grown at a profit in Illinois," E. W. Lehmann, head of the farm mechanics department, said.

Corn breeding and production specialists and soil fertility experts are launching an extensive investigation with nine main objectives. The chief lines of attack will be the finding of breeding varieties of corn that can be planted late and yet mature a good crop of sound corn the finding or breeding of varieties of corn that show least susceptibility to corn borer injury and late planting, to escape the corn borer eggs, thicker and closer planting to avoid corn borer injury and soil treatment for speeding up the maturity of the late planted corn.

Definite phases of this investigation will be allotted to the experiment fields now maintained by the college at Urbana, DeKalb, Minonk, Joliet and Sibley and probably to other special fields later, according to present plans.

BY NEA Service
Washington, April 12.—Corn belt farmers are warily plowing their fields and planting seed for a new crop that they fear will invite the progress of their most deadly enemy—the European corn borer.

This year witnesses the greatest concentration of money and effort to check this pest in its advance into the heart of the corn belt. To the $10,000,000 fund just appropriated by Congress, the states affected are adding more millions for its eradication.

Federal and state entomologists are trying new means to fight the borer. They have imported eight different types of parasites known to be hostile to the corn borer, and are depending especially on one insect that has already killed off as high as 8 per cent of the borers in some areas.

Guards are stationed at the boundaries of infested areas, on all highways, preventing the exportation of all corn into fields as yet untouched.

Scientists in their laboratories, and on the fields, are still seeking further means to prevent the rapid spread of this pest.

Covers Larger Area

But this great struggle as yet seems to be in favor of the enemy. In less than ten years it has spread its destruction from a rather small district in Massachusetts and one in New York to the entire area around Lake Erie on southward into West Virginia and westward past the Illinois border. It is advancing along a 650-mile front, over a territory well past 50,000 square miles in extent.

Almost the entire province of Ontario has succumbed to the pest, and surrounding provinces where corn is grown are threatened.

In the United States the corn borer has eaten its way well through New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana and into Illinois and West Virginia. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine and Rhode Island are also deeply infested, but the insect's advance there is in no proportion with its rapidity in the middle west.

The corn borer is traveling by land, water and air into the unfested regions, so that no matter what precautions are taken by government officials and farmers it is practically impossible to check it completely. Use of parasites and education of the farmers in the proper method of corn stalk disposal and other precautions will, it is hoped, slow up the borer's progress.

Last year the borer passed to the south of the great Ohio watershed, affording it quick and easy transportation by water to the south. The great spring floods, it is feared, have hastened its advance in that direction.

Feeds on Other Crops
By land the insect has crept from field to field, and by air the matured moth has flown considerable distance into virgin territory.

Corn isn't its only fodder. In fact, entomologists say it will eat as many as 200 different crops of economic value, including cotton and sugar cane.

The seriousness of this menace may be realized from the fact that as many as a million borers in the dangerous caterpillar stage may be present in an acre of land. In this stage the insect bores its way upward through the stalk and into the ear, ruining the plant. It remains in the stubble over the winter and goes into the growing plants in spring and summer.

To control its advance, the corn must be planted as late as possible in earlier maturing varieties with heavy stalks.

Good soil management, rotation of crops and efficient practices must be adopted. Plowing must be clean and deep, and at harvest time the stalks must be cut close to the ground and burned up.

EVENING CLASS FOR FARMERS IN COOP MARKETING

Western School Starts
First Class of Its Kind in Country

By NEA Service

Greeley, Col., April 11.—Farmers in this district are making up what is believed the first evening class in co-operative farming ever conducted. Their example is to be followed soon with the establishment of other evening classes throughout Colorado.

The class is being conducted by the department of vocational agriculture at the Greeley High School, in conjunction with the department of vocational education of the state agricultural college and with the various co-operative associations.

W. F. Heppie, field manager of the Colorado Potato Growers' Exchange, and J. D. Pancoke, secretary of the Mountain States Beet Growers' Association, are the instructors. Besides conducting the classes, these men go out among the "students" on their farms and give them practical instruction in the handling of their products.

The classes take up all possible matters concerning co-operative marketing, including organization, financing, pooling of products, sales methods and even the laws concerning this form of agricultural trade.

"It is not the purpose of this evening class to promote co-operative marketing nor to challenge the cause of any co-operative marketing association," says Dr. C. H. Lane, chief of the agricultural education service of the Federal Board of Vocational Education.

"The real purpose is to present in an organized study the fundamental principles underlying co-operative marketing of farm products. It has been felt for some time that there has been a real need for a purely educational program in this important field."

TEN THOUSAND ACRES ALFALFA FOR LOGAN CO.

An Acre for Each One of Dairy Cows Aim of Producers

Lincoln, Ill.—(AP)—Ten thousand acres of alfalfa—an acre for every dairy cow in the county—is the goal which Logan county farmers have set themselves during the coming year.

The plan is aimed at the problem of invasion of the European corn borer into Illinois by reason of the fact that it paves the way for a reasonable diversification of crops away from corn and at the same time it will go a long way toward solving the feed problem of many farmers in the county. J. H. Cheekley, Logan county farm adviser, explained.

The campaign for the desired acreage has just been launched under the direction in cooperation with the extension service of the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture at Urbana and local banks, elevators, seed dealers and newspapers.

For some time Logan county farmers have been concentrating to develop better corn and the situation with regard to the crop has greatly improved. The corn borer question makes this an especially good time to turn attention to the matter of crop diversification and an alfalfa campaign is right at the very heart of a reasonable diversification program, he said.

Furthermore, there are 10,000 dairy cows, 18,000 head of other cattle, 10,000 horses, 2,000 mules, 4,000 sheep and about 40,000 hogs on farms of this county. Logan county probably comes as near as any county in the state to growing its full share of clover, but more of this clover is threshed for seed than is cut for hay. Consequently, many farmers have to go outside the county for their supplies of legume hay.

"Banks of the county have agreed to cooperate in the campaign by sending out letters to their patrons calling attention to the need for more legume hays on farms of the county and encouraging farmers to get in line on the present campaign. The first of these letters have just been sent and three others will follow at regular intervals. A little later we will hold meetings in every town where the banks are co-operating."

High School Pupils are Raising Poultry

Gurnee, Ill., April 12.—(AP)—Students of agriculture in the high school of this Lake county village situated near the Wisconsin state line, have formed a unique marketing association and have entered the poultry raising field.

Shares in the association were sold for one dollar each and the money used to buy 258 hens. The flock was culled closely by the boys and the 78 culled sold for about half the original purchase price. The remaining 180 pullets and hens are housed on the high school grounds.

About half of the hens are laying and the eggs are in constant demand. The boys grade the eggs and pack them in neat cartons for sale. Two displays at a recent farmers' institute attracted attention and favorable comment.

Dividends were declared by the directors of the association February 9, amounting to twenty-five percent. Shares have increased in value and another series is selling for $1.10 and $1.15 per share.

COTTON SEED PAYS

More than 300 per cent net profit is promised from an investment in improved cotton seed, according to experiments made by the North Carolina Experiment Station at Raleigh. Two dollars an acre invested in such seed will bring a profit of from $5 to $8.

WHEAT FOR CHINA

When China settles down to peaceful pursuits, Canada may expect to have a new and immense market for its wheat. This is the promise of J. E. Scott, representing a large British firm at Hongkong.

We invite our friends in the county to visit our newspaper plant and see just how a newspaper is gotten out.

FARMER CHANGED INTO ORCHARDIST BY H. S. EFFORTS

Work of Class Saved
Massac Co. Man's
Old Orchard

Metropolis, Ill., April 12.—(AP)—Students of vocational agriculture at Metropolis High School have changed one farmer here into an orchardist.

With the aid of the Massac County farm adviser, they selected a thirty-year-old orchard, in the fall of 1925, for attention. It was badly neglected and in need of pruning and spraying. Twenty of the thirty-two trees were Winesaps and the remainder were Grimes Golden and crap apple trees.

Pruning was accomplished by class members working the better part of two weeks during their spare time. The orchard was sprayed four times using the dormant, pink calyx and fruit sprays, with students doing the work. It was visited at regular intervals during the summer by students. Observations were taken at each visit.

When the apples were harvested, the twenty Winesap trees produced 194 bushels of apples, an average of 9.7 per tree. The same twenty trees had produced a total of fifteen bushels the preceding year. About sixty bushels were obtained from the other twelve trees, making a total of 254 bushels from the thirty-two trees.

Two barrels of cider from the fallen apples were made into vinegar. The apples were valued at eighty cents per bushel, making a total of $201.20.

As a result of the work by the high school students, the farmer has now decided to add ten acres to his orchard. Elberta and Hale peaches will be grown in the new orchard.

TURPENTINE RETURNS

North Carolina may again profit by a renewed turpentine industry. There are now nearly 200,000 acres of second growth long leaf pine in the state, which furnish bright prospects.

SHOT FROM THE HIP

Chicago—W. A. Spauldan, garage owner, spent his early years in the west when King Colt still ruled. He never forgotten how to draw quickly and shoot from the hip. Four hold-up men followed him home recently, drew revolvers, demanding money. Spauldan's gun barked. One bandit will die, another was wounded, all were captured.

Farm Facts of Interest From Federal Bureau

More than 4,000,000 acres of land are still available for cultivation in the United States. This lies in the 58 drainage districts of the lower Mississippi valley and south Atlantic states. Only one-fourth of this area has so far been put under the plow, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Veterinarians of the department of animal husbandry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, tested seven million cattle for tuberculosis in 1925. That's only one-seventh the number of cattle in the country.

Uncle Sam is warning farmers this year against planting larger crop areas in view of the unfavorable agricultural outlook.

Sowing oats or small grains on disked corn stubble helps the spread of the malicious corn borer, warns the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Fields must be plowed deep and all corn remnants turned under.

Slash, of yellow, pine has become one of the most profitable timber trees in the country, reports the Forest Service. Bupt it can be grown best only in the area south of the coastal plain of North Carolina and east of the Mississippi.

Honey producers of the intermountain states are organizing a co-operative honey marketing association. These beekeepers produce a high grade of clover and alfalfa honey, which heretofore has reached the eastern market only when mixed with darker honey.

French agriculture is shifting from cereal production to animal industry, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture after a survey in that country. This movement, although noted since the thirties, has been greatly accelerated since the war.

Holdup of Two Chicago Messengers Nets $10,000

"When the Creator had made all the good things, there was still some dirty work to do, so He made the beasts and reptiles and poisonous insects; and when He had finished, He had some scraps that were too bad to put into the Rattlesnake, the Hyena, the Scorpion and the Skunk, so He put all these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak, and called it a KNOCKER.

"This product was so fearful to contemplate that He had to make something to counteract it, so He took a sunbeam and put it in the heart of a child, the brain of a man, wrapped these in civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grasp of steel, and called it a BOOSTER; made him a lover of fields and flowers and manly sports, a believer in equality and justice; and ever since these two were, mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his associates."

Matinee Ladies

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. "MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture-ization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Bob Ward, poor college student, working as a dancing partner for rich women, falls in love with Sally Smith, a cigarette girl. She warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitué of the roadhouse, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob, who, however, trusts her. She offers him free use of her secret apartment. Bob quarrels with Sally over the offer, and leaves in a huff to go to Mrs. Hammond. Repenting, he returns to Sally's house, only to find she has gone to a cold party with Mannon, a rival.

At certain frequent intervals these more or less undraped living statues came magically to life, and displayed very good form as waitresses.

Mazie and her intimates of the regal circle of queen gold-diggers were the accredited dancing partners for the twelve best clubmen. But at more off-recurring moments, as the party grew mellow and into a more friendly and informal mood, one or more of the twelve best clubmen would bubble over with uncontrollable democracy and playfulness, and grab one of the statues for a few frivolous steps.

Mazie, who was a most tolerant person where the idiosyncrasies of the twelve best bluebloods were concerned, would restore order invariably with her quaint and engaging little manner of prying the gay clubman loose from the coy statue, and saying, "Be yourself, J. Van Pierpont, or Mazie spunk!" Should the exuberant member of the Twelve persist in his boyishness, Mazie would grow austere, and declare, "Another nice crack out of you, Mr. Sub-Treasury, and I'll pitch you out the window!"

"I never expected to meet a girl like you at Mazie's party!"

After which the party proceeded hilariously, the ruffled statue rearranged her seventh and only remaining veil, and Mazie returned her solicitous attention to her other guests, notably Sally and Tom Mannon.

Poor little Sally Smith, for all her bird of paradise, had remained a timid canary, obviously out of her normal flight in this New York apartment aviary. Madame Leonine and Mazie, no doubt a bit conscience-stricken under their flimsy shells for their part in helping to stack the cards against her, had tried their best to make her feel at home. But to no avail. She clung, frightened, to Tom's arm, somewhat to that young man's annoyance, for he was itching to wander around a bit, and mix his dances with the statues.

But more than by any spirit of contrition, Mazie was actuated in her kindness toward Sally by an astute realization of the impression the girl's virginal prettiness was making on the twelve best clubmen: in particular, on the best of the twelve best clubmen.

"Gosh, kid," Mazie found a chance to breathe into Sally's ear during an intermission in the revelry, "you've knocked old Arlington Aldrich cock-eyed. He's my latest all-day sucker, too; so I ought to be jealous, but I ain't. We cigarette girls, ex and present, must stick together. Say, you know who Arlington Aldrich is, don't you?"

Sally nodded, wide-eyed, too scared to speak. Who, in fact, did not know who the great Arlington Aldrich was? The international banker, of a long line of bankers, whose financial house was the rock upon which the world's whole capitalist structure was built—and a man so remote that he never submitted to newspaper interviews. Yet, here he was, in the flesh, at Mazie Revere's wild party! Sally's little combed-honey head swam with the marvel of it; and with the terrifying realization that he had been staring at her almost ever since she had arrived; staring good-humoredly, but with pointed interest.

"Of course, you do," said Mazie. "Well, he wants a special introduction to you. Get that, dearie? Ain't a girl in this country tonight but whose heart would jump up against her back teeth to have him ask to meet her!"

Sally could not answer as to how other girls' hearts would bump. But for her own part she was suffering a most decided knocking together of her dimpled little knees as she saw the great financier approaching.

"Arlington, meet my little friend, Miss Sally Smith. She's about the only girl you'll ever meet here who won't ask you for a diamond bracelet a minute after she's said, 'Pleased to meet you!'"

Mazie laughed loudly at her own frank joke. As Mazie always did! Arlington Aldrich, Esquire, refrained from giving his usual appreciative chuckle at Mazie's witicism. For Arlington Aldrich, at the imperious snap of whose finger the mites and valets of all nations would open and reveal their stored bulwark to his cold gaze, was thinking that he had never seen, could never hope to see, riches to compare with the golden wealth of little Sally Smith's hair, the blue treasure of her eyes.

Mazie marched Tom Mannon off to a gay coterie in a corner. Sally found herself, all of a sudden, and moving as one in an incredible dream—from which she might expect to awaken any moment and learn that she had fallen out of bed—sauntering off to the roof garden conservatory of Mazie's top floor apartment, guided by the firm, strong hand that could sign a check for a nation's ransom without making a blot.

Found herself, presently, seated across a tiny wicker table from the great financier, while a living statue, temporarily not statuing, served them iced drinks in tall, thin tumblers.

Still in a daze, hardly knowing what she was doing, Sally mechanically raised her glass, against which Aldrich blinked his, and sipped the beverage. It was a sweetish, confusing drink. It burned her throat, gave her the shuffles, and made her feel suddenly warm. The lights and the murmuring night noises of Bagdad-on-the-Taxicab, twenty stories below, grew remoter.

Aldrich's face, big and hazy, like those grotesque close-ups in the movies where they wanted to register something fearsome, was moving over the table towards her. His lips were forming words that seemed to come out of the air, some place high above.

"I never expected to meet a girl like you at Mazie's party!" he declared.

"Oh, dear," remarked Sally quite irrelevantly, blinking at the indistinct face in front of her. "I don't think I should have taken that drink!"

"By jove," said the Big Face, which was curiously changing into moving panoramas of three, six and nine faces. "I really believe you've never had a drink before. This is no place for you," he laughed, in a way which meant that it was just the right place for her so long as he was there. "Why did you take that drink then, Miss?"

"The honest," said Sally in her naive honesty, "I thought you wanted me to!"

Aldrich chuckled—the kind of a chuckle that sounds a warning in virtuous ears, even when the owner of the ears may be a bit beclouded. His faces gradually focused down to one face again as his eyes feasted upon the pure and lovely countenance and form of little Sally Smith. He leaned even closer, as he asked, with an overtone of amusement, and an undertone of intense eagerness,

"I wonder if you'd be quite as willing to do anything I asked you to do, little girl?"

Aldrich was not a man accustomed to the need of sounding out any human being, any girl especially, as to their readiness to humor his desires. He had always known full well that the magic of his name and financial power made every man eager to be his sycophant, every woman eager to be his darling. However, here was one woman about whom he could not feel any such assurance. The phenomenon interested, even thrilled him. She was such an altogether desirable little vixen, too! This fresh beauty, this unspooled likeness to a flower, this innocence—well, she was worth a room full of Mazie!

It was drowsy and nice out here, and Sally felt that this great man's interest in her imposed upon her an unusual responsibility to be polite.

"Of course," she stated, a little thickly, but primly polite, "I'd try to do anything you wanted me to do, Mr. Aldrich."

Fate of Youngest Gold Camp Will Be Decided

Tonopah, Nev., April 11—(AP)—Weepah, the youngest and lushest gold camp in Nevada, has grown from a badger hole to a town of 1200 to 2,000 since its birth a month ago.

The tumult and shouting has died out sufficiently to allow the camp to take stock of itself. Its future as a gold camp probably will be fixed this week when Frank Horton, head of the company holding the land on which the first strike was made, will determine to what extent the discovery mine will be developed.

Thus far no real mining has been done in the Horton holdings because the mine has not yet been put in condition. Holders of Weepah's claims are looking to Horton's statement for guidance. What he does they will do; likewise as nearly as they can.

The derrick is one of the oldest of builders' inventions. Originally called "cranes," they acquired the other name from that of a seventeenth-century hangman who made his own gibbets.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire owner of the big Curtis Store, conducts two exciting contests and, strangely, the winners are the prettiest girls in his employ—BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX, WINNIE SHELTON, and others. Billy is suspicious of the old man's intentions. Her suspicions are heightened when CLAY CURTIS, son of the store owner, begs her to let him father and the contest alone. Clay has disabested himself and is living in the poor section of the town, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. He has a room with the Wells family.

At dinner given in the Curtis home for the prize winners, Billy sits next to DAVID ROMANINE and is completely ensnared by the spell of his personality. Billy notices that old T. Q. watches her, Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton with eager alertness during the whole evening.

The next morning Billy gets a telegram asking her and her mother to be at the Curtis home at ten o'clock. They go in spite of Clay Curtis' plea that they do not, and there are surprised to find Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton. Mr. Curtis tells them he wants to make them his wards for a year, giving them opportunities to fulfill ambitions which each has revealed in the contests. Nyda and Winnie are over-joyed, but Billy is mute. Her joy is unexcelled when old T. Q. presents her with a rare violin and tells her she is to study with the best teacher in town. He dismisses the girls to think the offer over, asking them to return with decisions the next day.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

AT half past five that afternoon Billy Wells laid her precious violin in its case and went to the kitchen, flexing her left arm that was stiff with hours of playing.

"Mother! You're crying! And you said you were happy!" Billy cried accusingly. "I'm not going! That's all there is to it! I'm not going to leave you here."

Mrs. Wells laughed shakily and retrieved the potato she had dropped in her surprise. "I reckon a body's got a right to cry for joy!" she protested.

"It wasn't joy," Billy insisted. "Oh, honey, what a beast you must have thought me today, because I jumped so at the chance to leave you. Didn't you know I couldn't do it, really? You've been so good to me always."

"And a fine mother I'd be if I let you make a fool of yourself and pass up the opportunity of a lifetime! Land alive! You'd be going to Europe to study if you had the money, wouldn't you? And I'm sure I wouldn't go to Europe with you," she lied bravely, "with no body but foreigners to talk to, and no bathtub. Of course you're going to live at Mr. Curtis' for a year. Now, get out of here and stop bothering me, or fix the salad if you're going to hang around the kitchen."

"Woof! Woof!" Billy laughed and kissed her mother on the back of the neck. "It'll just be for a year, and you can come home as often as you like. And don't you think I'll be so all-fired lonesome either. I'm going to feed Clay so well that he won't think of changing boarding houses."

"And I meant what I said about giving you a hundred and fifty a month out of my allowance." Billy was entirely cheerful again. "Fifty hundred dollars a month just to spend, mother! I can't believe it. Has the old boy gone crazy?"

"That won't be so much for the kind of clothes you'll be expected to wear as Mr. Curtis' ward," her mother pointed out. "And you'll have to pay for your music lessons out of that, I suppose. They say that Professor Navratil charges terrible prices—five dollars an hour, or something like that."

Half an hour later the sound of the front door opening told them that Clay had come home from work.

"It's two hundred years old. Your father gave it to me."

It was not going to be easy, Billy decided, as she sat down opposite Clay at the little round dining table. He looked tired and discouraged.

"Somebody's birthday?" He tried to make his voice jocular as he passed his plate, his eyes roving hungrily over the unusually festive meal. "Lord, but those lamb chops look good!"

"I did it," Billy acknowledged proudly. "And I made the salad and mashed the potatoes. Mama's good girl!" she applauded herself, hoping to win a smile from those tired lips.

"That's right—you didn't work today. Well, what's the latest news from the psychopathic ward? Did my eccentric father make you general manager of the Curtis Store?"

"Better than that," Billy told him, keeping a tight rein on her temper. "Wait till after supper and I'll show you. What's the news?"

"Ralph Truman was at the factory today—showing a delegation of women's club uplifters what a model factory looks like. And yet there's nothing else for me to do. You know I'd hoped to be able to write music in the evenings, but my nerves are so ragged when the day is over that I can't write anything worth putting on paper. I just want to play—with you. That's the only thing that makes it possible for me to go on."
